AN AUGUST DAY.

BY ALICE M. EDDY.

Over the fields, by winding ways, We wandered on together. Under the flashing azure skies, In a hush of August weather. Round about us, after and near. We heard the locusts humming, And the asters starring the lonely Laughed out to see us coming.

Bird songs out of the smallt oak.

Fell rippling through the shadow;
Like a spear of fame the cardinal flower
Burned out along the meadow.
Isto our hearts the blithe wind blew.
Its own free gladness giving.
And all things langbod in the happy earth,
For the pure, sweet joy of living.

Two roamed on with their eyes alight.

And their hearts too still for laughter;
Two, in a revel of geiden life.
Looked neither before nor after.
One went dreaming with downcast face.
Through the heab of the woodland cover;
But one pressed God from a trembling heart,
That the shadow of pain was over.

CARRAGE WORMS.—A writer in the Weekly Tribuse says that he hunted last year cabbage worms till be nearly crippled his back. One day a neighbor's wife came in and told him to use a tes made of cayenne pepper to sprinkle the cabbages with twice a day. He applied it, and his cabbages with twice a day. He applied it, and his cabbages and back were saved. He watched the millers, and they would not light on the plants which had the pepper on them.

A weak solution of ammonic lease the cabbages with twice and the plants which had the pepper on them.

ANANIAS, who fell down dead, might have held himself upright before a Louisiana investigating committee.
